The CSO Platform’s Network for One Health and Climate Change is established by the CSO Platform for Health Equity and Inclusiveness to promote a sustainable and collaborative approach to promote one health, including climate change and health: “an integrated, unifying approach that aims to sustainably balance and optimize the health of people, animals, and ecosystems” (OHHLEP 2021) as an effective and sustainable approach to addressing community health and wellbeing challenges at the intersection of human, animal, and environmental health including climate change. It recognizes the health of humans, domestic and wild animals, plants, and the wider environment (including ecosystems and climate ) are closely linked and interdependent and require multi- and inter-sectoral, interdisciplinary, and community collaboration at all levels of society to work together to foster well-being and tackle threats to health and ecosystems, address the collective need for healthy environments, to act on climate change and health and to contribute to sustainable development. (For more detail, please see background and TOR).
